A fresh beginning remarks oozing of creative ideas and enthusiastic hopes. The CSI-LNMIIT Student Chapter held its introductory meet, to introduce the hidden zeal of the council and also to introduce the students, to something different they should deal with in the further four years to come. by the freshers, the event was held in two lecture halls simultaneously.

It is rightly said that to indicate clear ideas to any set of audience, we need great orators who not only indulge people in their talks but also makes them forget the others chores running through their mind and thereby grabbing their entire attention. Tayba

Wasim, Akshay Maheshwari and Khushboo Baheti, Pranjali Agarwal were the anchors in different lecture halls respectively. Initially, the students were introduced to the hidden motivation and aim of the CSI Council as a whole and then branched out the ways to the CSI-LNMIIT Student Chapter. After this briefing, a short exciting quiz was held on the general computer science zone and the participation received was driven by a huge amount of enthusiasm. Students enjoyed the team spirit of the quiz. After this, a student from the Y-15 batch, Nilesh Rajpurohit, introduced himself to the crowd and shared his experiences of how his technical skills had enhanced in past year and that he is also a founder of a startup named studymedia.com .

The event finally concluded on a motivational speech given by the ex-Chairperson of the council, Pushkal Agarwal who shared his encounter and initiation stages of the council in LNMIIT and how it had advanced in the past years. He also talked about how being in CSI had helped him build an entirely new life and also about the knowledge he had enhanced in his college life.

Students not only felt motivated but also were able to build an inner desire of something new and different in their hearts through such an inspirational talk.
